

information. Kesselring states that shortly after they were married they went to Jersey City Heights to live and that his wife started to run around with a Charles Johnson who lived a few doors from his home; that on many occasions his wife stayed away all night and was untrue to him. Kesselring states that he is positive his wife Mary Eisleitner was born in Hoboken. At the time he married her he was living on Durant between First and Second Sts. Kesselring said that "she is a liar and would lie or do anything for money and would never tell the truth."
